The News.

The news from the States represents the nation apparently in all the throes of dissolution. National bankruptcy, national dismemberment, divided councils, incompetent generals, butcheries of the soldiers, a depreciated currency, commercial stagnation, misery, bread and butter, among the people— all loom up more or less visibly everywhere whether North or South. An awful crisis is upon the nation; and every day adds a new supplement to the evils that have already increased to such magnitude—it is wonderful how they can be borne. Foremost standers in the face of the division in the Washington Cabinet. One side wishes to make a conquest of the South, preserving its peculiar institutions intact; the other side wants to subjugate the South—blotting out every Southern right that clashes with Northern opinions or that by any possibility may militate against the reconstruction of the Union. The impression is that the latter party will obtain the ascendancy, and a reorganization of the Cabinet will take place. Like the Federal army after the battle of Bull's Run, the Cabinet appears demoralized, divided, unable to cope with the crisis, unfit to manage the affairs of the nation. Among the people the cry for a reorganization of the Cabinet is loud and strong, and growing stronger. Even Congress threatens that if no Cabinet change occurs, to resort to the British usage of a vote of want of confidence; and we can imagine that if that fails the supplies will be stopped, or a Provisional Government declared and a national dictator named. Nothing but wise statesmanship and unusual luck in the field can prevent an extraordinary political convulsion in the Washington Government. The next startling, but not unexpected event is the removal of Burnside, and the appointment of Gen. Hooker as commander-in-chief. The octogenarian Scott, lauded to the skies as the first general of the age, failed at the hour when most required. McClellan—the young Napoleon in the fervid and imaginative language of the people—came next. But Fabian generalship failed to succeed. Whether or not tried long enough or from other causes is not perfectly clear. Then came the unmitigated humbug, Gen. Pope. Defeated, disgraced, on the Rapahannock—from fighting the brave soldiers of Lee and Jackson, he was deputed to a command among savages in Minnesota. Next McClellan is recalled. He fights the famous battle of Antietam; recovers prestige in some degree, but is degraded suddenly from his command by order of Gen. Halleck. Burnside succeeds him, and now he, partially through Halleck failing to supply pontoons for crossing the Rapahannock, is defeated, and removed. Now we have Gen. Hooker, the great fighting general at Antietam. Like "Stonewall" Jackson, he has almost a charmed life; he has fought bravely at the head of his division. The nation now pauses to see what he will do. Yet it seems to have but little confidence as to his success. A great change, no doubt, is likely to occur in the plans of the war. As we anticipated, the movements on the Rapahannock appear to be but a cover to other operations. The advance on Richmond is hopeless. Gold in New York at 52 and 51 premium, marks the depression. It is not improbable that the seat of war will be changed. It is intimated that the army of the Potomac will be broken up and sent west. We shall not be the least surprised to see the rumor confirmed. Gen. Wool in New York has attempted to make the militia report to him. That has kicked up a bobby with the State authorities. But at the foundation of this movement, not improbably lies the groundwork of the change of the seat of war. The militia were wanting in case of an advance of the Confederates north. One State was to be obtained first, then another till the whole militia of the North were mobilized. We only give this as conjecture. But the removal of the army of the Potomac may bring in its train the evacuation of the city of Washington. Holding that city has been the cause of many a disaster to the Federals—so the national capital may yet be in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The plan of breaking up the army seems a good one—when the advance to Richmond is hopeless. By concentrating in the west and southwest, something may be done to arrest Confederate successes, and conquer the whole country from the Ohio to the Gulf of Mexico. Whether the Confederate army of Virginia would meet them there is a doubtful question, though not improbable. From Richmond comes the intelligence that Lincoln is fulfilling his promise to seize every United States fort; and without 75,000 or 100,000 more men the cause of the South will be lost. Such tidings presents the Southern cause in an unfavorable light. If the North groans under evils, and is undergoing an unheard of and unprecedented national crisis, the South feels the weight of its gigantic antagonist, and cries for help. We are flooded with news from the North, trashy telegrams as they are, contradictory, and based on the rumors in many cases that flow from month to month, in the great cities of the States; yet we learn little of the condition of the South. We know they have made a brave stand for independence, but whether they will succeed is something yet undecided. We know that the South must be suffering terribly, but how terribly, is hid. It seems to be a matter of exhaustion; whoever can hold out longest is likely to be the victor. The North now owes $50,000,000 of back pay to the army—five months arrears. The national debt is set down at $120,000,000, and the estimate is $300,000,000 a year. Secretary Chase's greenbacks, which he boasted to be as good as gold, are only worth 62 cents on the dollar. Thus the loss to the soldiers—to their families—will be some $20,000,000 on back pay, carrying distress to thousands and tens of thousands, who are dependent for support upon the soldier's pay. Even trade orders are stopped, because the army is not paid. Gold is running out of the country. Prices are inflated by depreciated paper; a financial crisis is impending. Withal the North is spending money and sacrificing lives, and seems determined to win at any and every hazard.

Appearances up to the present time point strongly towards an early mining season. Gens. Burnside, Sumner and Franklin Dismissed.

HIGHLY INTERESTING FROM MEXICO.

THURSDAY, Feb. 5, a. m.
The U. S. Mail Steamer Sierra Nevada arrived this morning, bringing the following interesting dispatches. She brings about 20 passengers:

The rise of the Rappahannock, occasioned by the severe rain storms, prevent a forward movement of the army toward the rebel capital. So we shall have to wait a little longer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The verdict of the court-martial in Fitz John Porter's case was approved yesterday by the President. Contrary to former reports, the court found him guilty of the charges preferred, and he was accordingly cashiered and dismissed the service.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—Late Southern papers just received, contain the following: A successful attempt was made to run the blockade of Charleston by the steamer Huntress, 400 bales of Cotton were burned off the mouth of the Savannah channel on the night of the 18th January.

It is conjectured that the recent storm disarranged the Federal's plans, and prevented the advance from Newbern.

The Esquiver of the 19th has the following from Charleston of the 18th: News received from the Southern authorities, upon the receipt of which the Federal's were taken, showing the heavy plume into the interior of the scaffold. The life-blood of the criminal poured out in vivid streams from the headless trunk, while the muscles and quivering arteries presented a ghastly spectacle. The crowd, seeing the body disappear from their view, and the rope swinging to and fro, at once supposed that some catastrophe had occurred, but it was not for a few moments that the nature of the execution was taken.

When it was bruted around that the man whom they had but a minute before seen alive on the scaffold was now a mangled and headless corpse, a thrill of horror seemed to settle upon the multitude, and the wailing for as it felt the authorities apparently shrinking from the task of touching the murderer's remains. The body was at length put in a coffin and delivered to a near relative of deceased for interment.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.—A German, named Andrew Kanderer, was charged before the Police magistrate yesterday morning with being a suspicious character, assaulting Shapard, the night watchman, and carrying a concealed weapon. Shapard stated that he found him apparently trying to evade notice behind a pile of magazines on one of the wharves, and that when he questioned him, the prisoner assaulted him, and resisted his seizure. With assistance he was taken, and the lock-up when an unloaded pistol was found on his person.

Mr. Courtenay, who appeared for the prisoner, contended that his client was a man of good character, and that he was seized for an unlawful purpose; the resistance offered to the officer was, however, admitted.

The case was adjourned for one day, in order to procure the attendance of witnesses.

EMPLOYMENT.—A number of men will this morning be set to work under the auspices of the committee deputed by the City Council to provide employment for the needy. It was found that there were not any labourers in town of the kind suitable for breaking rock, so a number were made to order by a blacksmith yesterday. The contractors having expressed their readiness to pursue all the work, the committee can furnish, we regard the scheme devised for employing the many men who are in destitute circumstances as a very happy one.

LOUISVILLE, January 22.—The official report of our losses at the battle of Murfreesboro is 1,474 killed, 6,874 wounded, and 12,000 captured. A detachment of the 221 Wisconsin, rebels captured from Helena to Clarendon, was captured by the rebels on Thursday last. It was completely surprised by 8,000 Mexican cavalry, and 2000 killed and wounded. Several of their officers were caught with lassos and dragged off. The French prospects look exceedingly bright. They can get no supplies from the country; are surrounded by a most determined enemy, who watch every opportunity to take advantage of them. Their soldiers, struggling from camp, are harassed daily. The small-pox, of the most malignant form, has broken out in the camp, and a lazaretto is being built for that class of patients.

LOUISVILLE, January 22.—The official report of our losses at the battle of Murfreesboro is 1,474 killed, 6,874 wounded, and 12,000 captured. A detachment of the 221 Wisconsin, rebels captured from Helena to Clarendon, was captured by the rebels on Thursday last. It was completely surprised by 8,000 Mexican cavalry, and 2000 killed and wounded. Several of their officers were caught with lassos and dragged off. The French prospects look exceedingly bright. They can get no supplies from the country; are surrounded by a most determined enemy, who watch every opportunity to take advantage of them. Their soldiers, struggling from camp, are harassed daily. New York, January 26.—On the night of the 19th of December, a severe shock of an earthquake was felt throughout Guatemala. A number of buildings were destroyed. The steamer Boardman, from New Orleans, has arrived. On the 7th, the United States sloop-of-war Brooklyn, in company with six other Federal steamers, saw a steamer in the offing, and the steamer Hatteras got under way to overtake her, and when she was within hailing distance, she was hailed, and received an answer, "Her Majesty's sloop-of-war Spitfire." The commander of the Hatteras then lowered a boat with an officer and crew to go on board, and the steamer Spitfire was towed into the harbor. The Brooklyn got under way and started in pursuit, but night came on the last night of her chase, and she was compelled to give up the chase. On returning, she found the steamer Spitfire sunk in the waters near the mouth of the Potomac. The officers of the Boardman are unable to identify her particular, although it is supposed that the steamer was the pirate Alabama.
